and advance the use of LCA
in shaping a sustainable economy

Organizational Membership in the American Center for Life Cycle Assessment (ACLCA) is essential to companies, academic institutions, government agencies, and NGO's involved in Life Cycle Assessment (LCA).

ACLCA is a non-profit membership organization that brings together diverse organizations with a stake in the implementation and application of LCA. ACLCA also produces the LCA annual conference—the largest LCA meeting in North America—along with monthly webinars, member newsletter, certification programs, and active Industry, Education, Policy, Product Category Rule (PCR) and Certification Committees.

ACLCA ORGANIZATIONAL MEMBERSHIP

Only ACLCA Organizational Members can serve on the ACLCA Board and be appointed as a Committee Chair on ACLCA's Committees. In addition, you and your organization will have the opportunity to:

lead

Access and visibility among your LCA peers to confirm your position as a LCA frontrunner. You'll be at the table to guide, direct, and influence the major issues affecting your organization.

learn

Attend live and on-demand education sessions on the most important topics in LCA to help you make informed decisions and grow your organization.

influence

Inform ACLCA's work on LCA and share your insights on application of LCA and priority areas and issues. Members collaborate to establish efficient and effective strategies for overcoming obstacles, sharing successful strategies, best practices and case studies.

connect

Meet and collaborate with colleagues in the LCA community by participating in ACLCA Committees and Working Groups. These forums foster productive discussions and idea sharing, and cover topical areas crucial to your organization.

stay informed

Stay up-to-date on what matters to you most through exclusive Member communications and access to ACLCA's Committees.

BENEFITS

ACLCA Organizational Member benefits are designed to provide you and your organization with tools, information, resources, and opportunities to help your organization advance and succeed.
